

ID CAMP PRIORITIZATION WORKSHEET

1. Get a calendar and make sure that attending a camp works in your schedule. I would not change a family vacation because of an ID Camp.
2. Develop a budget for camps. What are you willing to spend on ID Camps? This should include camp fees, travel, hotel, food, etc.

Total Budget for All ID Camps: $ _____

Below you will list the name of the camp and its estimated cost. Be sure to include travel, hotel and food costs in addition to camp fees.) Then, rate each camp from 1-5 in the categories provided. Add the totals and you'll determine the value for each camp.

Strongly Disagree = 1

Disagree = 2

Neutral = 3

Agree = 4

Strongly Agree = 5

	Camp Name
Estimated Total Cost
Will I get accepted to the schools attending this camp?
Have I had REAL and PERSONAL communication with coaches attending?
Do you believe you have the ability to play at the colleges hosting/attending?
Does the camp work in my family's calendar?
Are there multiple colleges I am interested in that are attending the camp?
Do you know where you stand with coaches attending the event?
If there is interest, did the coach say that in order to be considered you MUST attend the camp?
Is the camp the only way a coaching staff will be able to see you play and be evaluated?

NOTE

You need to determine how many camps you can attend in your budget, which ones could be best for you based on your rankings and what the best return on investment is for you. Once you do this, if you want me to look at your list of potential camps, I will give you my honest assessment of how each would benefit you. While I can't make the decision for you, I can give you thoughts and help you narrow your list.

Once you register for a camp, you'll need to do the little things before, during and after the camp to maximize these opportunities. As mentioned in the video, I think the best value exists in the one day camps that are reasonably priced (less than $150 to register). These camps typically have a lot of coaches in attendance and/or ones where a personal invitation and communication with the coaches have occurred.
